You know what I mean... You're on a date with a great woman, and the conversation seems to be going well. You like her, and it appears that she likes you too.

So now what? How do you stop talking, and start touching? How do you get off the endless merry-go-round of small talk, and into the realm of pleasure and intimacy?

Well that's what you're about to discover...

One of the biggest mistakes I used to make on dates was that I talked WAY too much.

When I first began learning about women and dating, I read a bunch of books that told me to "keep the conversation going", and she'll eventually become interested in you physically.

What a bunch of garbage! Nothing is further from the truth. If you want to connect with a woman physically, you have to...

* STOP talking and start TOUCHING! *

You will rarely get intimate with a woman on a date by using words. Sure, there are some wordsmiths out there who can pull it off... but it's a lot easier to make out with a woman by talking...

...WITH YOUR BODY.

Nothing will bore a woman into wanting to go home early more than small talk. That's not what she's there for. She's there to see if she can become excited with you, and have a connection with you. She's there to have fun... not "chit chat" on a friendship level. She can talk about the friggen weather with anyone.

As the date progresses, you can do little moves to get her more and more used to having physical contact with you. Small things lead to larger things... and before you know it, you'll be making out with her.

Here are a few simple moves that work amazingly well. I've used these moves literally hundreds of times, so you can rest assured that you are getting something that has been proven over time.

A SIMPLE BACK RUB GOES A LONG WAY

Do this little move when you're walking side by side. During a high point in the conversation, reach over and rub her back in a gentle circular motion 2-3 times, and then LET GO. Don't keep doing it just because she's letting you.

You are not massaging it, you are just gently caressing her back to make her feel good. It will enhance her positive feelings for you, and will condition her to feel good when you touch her.

THE KILLER COMBO

If you're in a restaurant with her, and she's wearing any kind of rings or bracelets, hold your hand out (palm up), and say "So let me see your rings. Where'd you get this one? How about this one? Etc."

What's this have to do with getting physical with her? EVERYTHING.

The reason you stick your hand out is so she will give her hand to you. Then, you take it and bring it closer to you. Now, while you're touching her hand... caress her hand and fingers once or twice.

Don't overdo it, or it will seem like you weren't really interested in her rings to begin with... and she will not trust anything you do after that, because you have shown to her that you are capable of having ulterior motives, and being dishonest.

Just caress the hand once or twice and then compliment her on her skin. You could say something like, "Your skin is so soft"... as you caress her hand, and then put it back.

If her skin really isn't soft, then you could say. "Your hands feel really nice. It's so easy to hold them like this." and then caress them and pull back.

Don't overdo it... remember a tactic known is a tactic blown.

Listen to me... I have done this HUNDREDS of times, and it has always worked. How do I know it worked? Because I would usually be kissing her within 5-10 minutes after I did that.

If these techniques seem too simple for you, please just try them anyway. Getting close to a woman doesn't have to be complicated, and it certainly doesn't have to be convoluted.

Because these moves are so simply and easy, you will automatically remember to use them when you're on a date.

In fact, I created a whole system of ideas and techniques that will have you making out with ANY woman on the first date... and beyond.
